

Benia C. H. Richardson is a Baltimore native; graduated from Western High School “Only the Best!”; and received her Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from Morgan State University (Go Bears!). She has always enjoyed serving the community both volunteering as well as holding various positions to include the local school district, and several nonprofit organizations within, both, public and private sectors throughout the state of Maryland. Governor-appointed, she currently serves as the Vice-Chair of the Northwest #8 Regional Board for the Citizens Review Board for Children (CRBC). Maintaining her passion for empowering the youth, she also yields to her true purpose--uplifting the adult population in need of regaining power over their own lives. She enjoys working diligently to bridge the gap for those that aspire to support their own families; and looks to further work within this capacity at BACH creating pathways to opportunity. She is a true testament to the significance of upholding her strong beliefs and living out her personal mantra: “Don’t fail them now in order to prepare them for life to fail them later. Instead, equip them for the failings in life to come so they don’t become failures!”
